School Trustees Appoint Committees

Seek Co-Operation of Ratepayers to Raise Loan of $12,000 at 5 Per cent. Interest to Complete Payment for New Building and Equipment.

The first meeting of the 1937 school trustees was held on Tuesday evening at 7.30. Present: G. Hope, R. M. Greenhalgh, William Fraser, N. Fleming and P. Sharp absent.

The opening of the meeting was delayed for one hour but as the other trustees had not arrived, and certain provisions of the Schools Ordinance requiring that officers and committees be appointed and their names sent to the department not later than ten days from the election date, it was moved by Fraser, seconded by Greenhalgh, that G. Hope be elected chairman. Carried.

Moved by Greenhalgh-Fraser, that James Ford be secretary, treasurer and assessor.

Committees:
Management—Hope, Greenhalgh, Sharp.

Works and Property—Fraser, Fleming.

Dental—Fraser, Sharp.

The regular meetings will be held on the first Tuesday in each month as heretofore, on motion by Fraser-Greenhalgh.

In a discussion on the raising of the money required to pay the balance on the new building, the secretary reported having received a letter from J. S. D'Appolonia, contractor, requesting payment of $7,000 in accordance with terms of the contract. Over $20,000 has been paid. The letter also stated that on Jan. 28 he had asked for an extension of time owing to adverse weather conditions. As he had received no official reply, he took it for granted that this had been granted.

Motion by Fraser-Greenhalgh: That extension be granted as requested, Trustee Greenhalgh pointing out that weather conditions warranted it.

The contractor's letter also pointed out that the auditorium floor required to be sanded at a cost of $125. Owing to no word having been received from the architect, G. W. Meech, no definite action was taken.

Secretary reported he had received a few applications for shares in the $12,000 loan but not sufficient to cover the amount required. It was moved by Fraser-Greenhalgh that the chairman and secretary interview certain parties with a view to securing subscriptions towards the loan, also that an advertisement concerning same be published in the Coleman Journal.

Trustee Fraser stated that when he was on the board at the time Cameron school was erected, money was raised through private parties, and they had so many applications that sufficient could have been secured to have built two schools. Contractor D'Appolonia by letter asked for time to be granted for removal of the vault door from its present position in the bank school to its permanent position in the new building. Moved by Fraser-Greenhalgh that it be moved at the discretion of the contractor.

The resignation of Harold Reid as building inspector, effective Feb. 15, was read, he stating that all records had been turned over to the secretary. Greenhalgh-Fraser: That resignation be accepted and filed.

A letter from B. P. McEwen, optician, addressed to Miss Milley, teacher, was read concerning the need for correction of the eyes of Sonia Holly, 10 years. This was laid on the table for further consideration.

As trustee Greenhalgh stated there were certain matters he wished to have discussed, it was decided to hold another meeting this evening (Thursday) at 7.30. The meeting adjourned at 9.20 p. m.

Miners to Negotiate New Agreement

Pit Committees of Both Mines Appointed to Interview General-Manager Kellock

A well attended miners' meeting was held in the Community hall on Sunday last when they discussed terms of the new agreement which will come into force March 31. Pit committees for both mines were elected to interview general manager Kellock. Representing the International are Messrs Hayson, Lees, Chamberlain and Hadley. McGillivray representatives are Stigler, Morris, Chapman and Griffiths.

Next Sunday the renewal of doctors' contracts will be discussed and a large attendance is expected. It is reported three doctors will probably be engaged in future.

Announcement

The Ladies Aid of St. Paul's church will hold their Valentine tea, pantry, apron and parcel sale, on Saturday, Feb. 20, from 3 till 6 p.m. in the church hall. Everybody welcome. Come and bring a friend. Tea 25c.

Mrs. Bevan represented Coleman W.M.S. at the annual meeting in Lethbridge last week, and while in the city was the guest of Dr. and Mrs. Galbraith. She returned on Tuesday morning. A report will be given at a meeting of the local branch of the W. M. S.

Result-getting advertising is a steady pull—not an occasional jerk.

$12,000 Required Important Notice

Coleman School Board wishes to borrow the sum of $12,000 with interest at 5 per cent. per annum, paid semi-annually. Anyone wishing to subscribe to this loan, in sums of $500 or more, please apply from 1 to 4 p.m. to

JAMES FORD,
Secretary Coleman School District.

Influenza Cuts Wide Swath

On Monday 150 children were reported absent from school, four regular teachers and two substitute teachers. It appears that the crest of the wave which has swept across the country reached here over the week-end, and a large number of people were seized about a week ago. Though not anywhere as severe as the epidemic of 1918, when fatalities mounted to an alarming figure, it has caused acute discomfort in bodily pains. Though free advice given in newspapers advises against the use of alcoholic beverages during an attack of influenza, the consumption of rum took quite a jump.

Subscribe to Schools Loan

Coleman has always been able to borrow from private citizens when occasion demanded. To complete the payment of costs of the new school, the board desires to borrow $12,000 in denominations of not less than $500 with interest at 5 per cent, payable semi-annually. This is an investment backed by the school district assessment and under present conditions gives a good safe return.

Snow Blockade Continues

Highways Department Powerless to Cope With Drifts and Road Transportation at Stand-Still—Railways to the Rescue.

By not being able to cope with the difficulties the provincial government is losing revenue of 7c a gallon on gasoline, and motorists and bus companies are completely tied up. The road between Coleman and Blairmore has been kept open by the use of Blairmore's caterpillar tractor and plow, the expense being borne equally by the two towns, who hope to collect from the highways department.

Albert Knowles telephoned to E. O. Duke, M.L.A., on Wednesday, pointing out the necessity for delegating authority to someone in the Pass to take whatever measures may be deemed necessary to relieve the situation, but was referred to Mr. Bradley, the district superintendent of highways. "What's the use of that?" Albert disgustingly remarked in informing The Journal of the efforts to secure action: "we need someone on the spot."

So there the matter rests. Garages and service stations may as well be closed, as there is hardly any sale. Were it not for the C.P.R. most southern Alberta communities would be isolated, something that should be remembered by the public at large.

Neil Fleming has been ill for the past two weeks.

Mrs. George Graham and Miss Lucille LePage spent the week-end in Calgary.

Fisheries Dept. Campaign

During the past few weeks readers will have noticed attractive advertisements to popularize the consumption of fish. The campaign is under the sponsorship of the Department of Fisheries, Ottawa, and a coupon accompanies each ad. which if forwarded to Ottawa will bring a 52-page recipe book.

A few enquiries into local consumption proved interesting. It showed consumption to be about 12,000 lbs. annually, most of the fish coming from the Pacific coast. Smoked fish was seen on sale in local stores from Lunenburg, Nova Scotia. During Lent there is a little higher demand, but most stores found the average sale was fairly steady through the year, each reporting sales from 75 to 100 lbs. weekly.

In increasing the consumption of fish, added employment is given to all engaged in Canadian fisheries on the Pacific and Atlantic coasts, besides the fresh-water fishermen of the inland waters.

A regular subscriber to The Journal since it was established in 1921, Mr. A. Carswell of Lundbreck again sends in his renewal subscription with his customary promptitude. Mr. and Mrs. Carswell have a store at Lundbreck, and also for a number of years operated the Red Tub Tea Room. Just at present the village is almost isolated by the snow blockade.

Hockey Exhibition Game Friday Night

Brandon C.P.R. Team Will Make Keen Bid for Victory Over Canadians—Touring Visitors Are Speedy Aggregation from Manitoba League

Uncertain if Luscar Will Play Here

Despite $500 Guarantee by Executive of Canadians for Three Game Play-off Series.

Negotiations were still proceeding at noon to-day between Canadians and Luscar as to final arrangements for the play-offs. Luscar has been told by the A. A. H. A. that the series must be played at Coleman, the latter having guaranteed the northern club $500.

With roads in such poor condition and the guarantee looming large in the eyes of the local executive as a result, they contacted the Lethbridge arena management and asked them to allow the first game to be played at Lethbridge. The latter agreed and wired Luscar an offer of 75% of the gate receipts if they would agree to play in that city where a sell-out is practically assured for a game of this calibre.

So far Luscar have come to no decision and judging by the way they are holding back their final decision it would be no surprise if they withdrew from the play-offs altogether.

Twenty-five Planes Fight A Spectacular Air Duel Over Madrid

Twenty-five insurgent and government aeroplanes fought a spectacular duel over southeastern Madrid Sunday. Havas News Agency reported. Diving and rolling, 10 insurgent planes battled 15 government craft over the Puente de Valencas quarter.

Two insurgent craft plunged to earth, according to eye-witnesses, raising to five the number of enemy craft downed by government airmen within the last 48 hours. Three planes were shot down in another combat near Arganda, 16 miles southeast of Madrid, on Saturday.

Fighting raged Sunday along the entire Madrid line with each side claiming successes.

Madrid's defence junta said its militiamen smashed against the enemy in the Usara quarter to the southwest, storming forward behind grenade-throwers to capture houses after house, leaving only a few buildings in that sector in the hands of the insurgents.

Correspondents with insurgent forces south of Madrid reported the Fascists claimed they had lightened their grip of the vital Madrid-Valencia highway at another point.

Machine gun fire swept the main highway between Arganda and Tarancon from newly-gained insurgent position on the Tjuna river. At the same time insurgent commanders claimed their forces held all hot tips rising west of the highway between Arganda and Vaciamadrid. Socialist attacks were hurled back after bitter fighting, insurgents claimed. They asserted they buried 1,800 enemy dead during the weekend.

Government sources claimed the insurgents in Madrid's University city had been cut off from their supply route for the past 48 hours as defenders swept with machine gun the only route by which supplies could be moved to that sector.

A Reuters's News Agency correspondent permitted to visit Malaga, large Spanish southern seaport captured recently by insurgents, reported more than 1-10th of the city had been destroyed, with damage of more than $100,000,000.

From Valencia, shelled by an insurgent warship Sunday night, the Associated Press quoted Julio Alvarez del Vayo, Spanish foreign minister, as again accusing Germany and Italy of supporting the insurgents.

In a broadcast he said capture of Malaga was effected through use of heavy foreign detachments. "I am wondering," he said, "whether the signatories of the non-intervention agreement are going to wait until Germany and Italy land all the forces deemed necessary by the German general staff at Burgos (seat of the insurgent junta) before deciding on the means to enforce the carrying out of their resolutions."

Freedom Of Worship

Mexican Catholics Resume Possession Of Churches

Orizaba, Mexico. Loyal Roman Catholics, resuming possession of this city's 14 churches closed for 10 years, launched a Lenten crusade against seizure of religious property and the government's program of socialist education.

"Never permit the churches to be closed again," handbills urged the devout who despatched to State Governor Miguel Aleman an appeal for freedom of worship.

Small groups of laymen sat on wooden benches within the closed-shuttered churches to keep guard but police and military authorities apparently intended to take no action.

Crowds estimated at 15,000 persons broke open the buildings in indignant demonstration after a 14-year-old girl worshipper was killed by police in a raid on a secret mass in a private home.

Two special agents of the department of interior, presumably acting for President Lázaro Cárdenas, joined state authorities in efforts to find a solution to the question.

The Catholics vowed they were determined to keep the churches open but there was no attempt to conduct services, although Lent had begun.

The government has pursued a policy of confiscating church properties to speed its program of socialization, and there have been numerous clashes between church and state.

The program for teaching socialism in the schools, and barring religious instruction, has not yet been enforced but already it has caused vigorous Catholic opposition.

Cannot Mint Special Coins

Time Will Not Permit Issue To Commemorate Coronation

Ottawa. Time required in obtaining necessary dies would not permit the minting of 1,000,000 silver dollars to commemorate the coronation of King George VI, Hon. C. A. Dunning, finance minister, told the House of Commons. Mrs. Martha Black (Cons., Yukon) asked the government if it would not be possible to make this issue as a typical Canadian token to the coronation year.

Mr. Dunning explained the intricacies of minting and the experience with the silver dollar struck to mark the jubilee of King George V. Some 745,000 of those dollars have been issued.

Thomas Reid (Lib., New Westminster) supported the suggestion but said he would not want it to rest with a souvenir issue but that all silver be taken over by the government and certificates issued. This, he said, would be a means of meeting the unemployment problem.

Floods In England

Wide Sections Submerged As Rivers Continue To Rise

London.—Worst floods in a quarter of a century were predicted as steadily rising rivers, spurred by unceasing rains, submerged wider sections of England and France.

More heavy rain was forecast in both countries. Swollen rivers drove inhabitants from their homes in lowlands and, in some places, flood tides rose in city streets to the rooftops of dwellings.

Parts of 13 counties in southern England were flooded. Thousands of acres of farm land were inundated and large numbers of householders forced to flee their homes along several stretches of the Thames River.

Danger Of War In Europe Is Over Says German Spokesman

Election Act Amendment

Would Make Election Returns More Quickly Available

Ottawa. Proposed amendment to the Election Act to make returns promptly available to the candidates and the public on election night received favourable consideration in the House of Commons committee on the Election and Franchise Acts.

Jules Castonguay, chief electoral officer, was instructed to draft an amendment to permit deputy returning officers to telephone or telegraph polling results to returning officers at government expense for the benefit of the candidates and the press.

Supporting the proposal, several members recalled in the last election it had taken days for returns to be made available from some distant points.

C. E. Bouthwell (Lib., Swift Current), chairman of the committee, remarked there was now a great duplication of expense because various political organizations made separate arrangements to get the returns every election.

Suggestion that poll clerks be not only residents of the riding where they act but electors as well received approval. Mr. Castonguay explained this was to prevent mirrors from poll clerks.

Proposal for floating polls for permanent, bed-ridden patients in hospitals was laid over for further consideration.

The committee rejected a suggestion for expanding advance polls to include court officers, nurses, teachers and university students.

Several members contended that if any alteration were made in this regard, the provision would become so steadily enlarged the advance poll would wind up as practically a new election.

Renew Relief Loans

Ottawa. Relief loans of $3,613,019 to Saskatchewan and $500,000 to Alberta, which those provinces were unable to redeem on their recent maturity, have been renewed for one year at three per cent interest. Hon. C. A. Dunning, minister of finance, revealed in two orders-in-council tabled in the House of Commons.

Berlin. There will be no war in Europe, Dr. Joseph Goebbels, minister of propaganda, declared before a mass meeting of 20,000 persons here.

Until recently there was danger of war, he continued, but it has passed since Germany successfully rearm.

"We will attack no one," the propaganda minister asserted, "and, believe me, I do not think that anyone any longer plays with the idea of attacking us. There would be too much risk involved in such an attack."

But before this degree of preparedness could be reached, Dr. Goebbels said Nazi leaders had lived through "many sleepless nights." Burning great risks at times, they nevertheless moved, step by step and point by point, the threats involved in the treaty of Versailles—compulsory disarmament, demilitarization of the Rhineland and other restrictions on German freedom of action.

The minister of propaganda said he was sure "Moscow and the Jews want war, for only through war could Europe become really ripe for Bolshevism."

Five German Fliers Killed

Military Plane Injured Several In Busy Berlin Street

Berlin.—A Junkers military plane crashed in the Muellesstrasse, a busy thoroughfare in northern Berlin, killing five airmen fliers and spraying burning gasoline over street cars and pedestrians. Several persons were seriously burned, one dying.

The plane came off a street car, severing trolley wires, which were short-circuited. An automobile on the street caught fire and burned.

The plane crashed almost in front of a cage containing 15 lions belonging to a travelling menagerie. The roaring of the frightened animals added to the confusion.

Opposing Grain Rates

Winnipeg.—The Northwest Grain Dealers' Association expressed opposition to proposed federal government legislation establishing minimum freight rates on grain down the Great Lakes. The association sent in its protest to Ottawa, where parliament is considering the bill.

Economic Aspects Of Western Drouth Problem Is Reviewed

Ottawa. The western drouth problem in its historical and economic aspects was outlined to the House of Commons by Hon. J. G. Gardiner, minister of agriculture, who predicted in 10 years there would be more people in the so-called drouth area than there are to-day.

Mr. Gardiner drew on his experience as a farmer battling drouth in the western states and in Saskatchewan and as a cabinet minister in the Saskatchewan government to show the open prairie lands were capable of producing great wealth and should not be abandoned.

Some 500,000 people, he said, inhabited the triangular area of 300 municipalities which had suffered from drouth in the past five years. These people could not be settled anywhere else in Canada and given the same opportunity they enjoyed where they were.

The minister spoke as the house gave second reading to his bill to amend the prairie farm rehabilitation act under which drouth-combating measures were initiated two years ago.

So far the Dominion government had advanced $28,000,000 to maintain the people of the drouth area of Saskatchewan and of this sum $27,000,000 had been assumed wholly by the Dominion. The rest represented debts owing from the province.

This money was paid out in recognition of the responsibilities the Dominion had for the people, arising out of the conditions under which they settled the land and the inducements held out to them to grow wheat during the war. It also involved recognition of the drouth as a national problem affecting the whole of Canada.

The time had come, Mr. Gardiner said, to do something more than keep the people on the land, to take some constructive steps to improve their conditions. Under the drouth rehabilitation scheme water holes had been dug and dams constructed. Plans were now under way for shifting some of the farmers to better lands and putting lands to their best use.

"I should like to say to those who are concerned about the future of Saskatchewan," he said, "that we are going to have good crops again in western Canada. Some day we will have a combination of good crops and fairly good prices. When we do our position will not be impossible. That is the reason I think the government should give some attention to maintaining the people in this area."

Wheat production in Saskatchewan in the three years, 1926-27-28, was valued at $1,180,000,000. In the three years ending with 1933 it was valued at $254,000,000. The drop of about $926,000,000 was the equivalent of the whole of the debt of the province, provincial, municipal, school districts and private. Another period of good crops and good prices would make a great change.

To pessimists who complained about the climate of the prairies, Mr. Gardiner said if they had a different climate people could not live there. The climate was suited for growing wheat. The people had not suffered any more from drouth in the past few years than the people of the western states suffered in the nineties. A few inches of rainfall might spell the difference between a bumper crop and a failure but other conditions, wind and temperature, entered the picture and dry weather alone was not the cause of crop failures.

As an evidence of the economic importance of the area the minister said the 1,800,000-acre of bumper land afflicted with drouth this year was one-quarter of the entire acreage of improved land in the Dominion. The population in the area was equal to the whole population of Saskatchewan, the third most populous province in Canada.

New Air Venture

Globe Circling Flight Proposed By Amelia Earhart Putnam

New York.—Amelia Earhart Putnam, conqueror of both the Atlantic and Pacific oceans, announced a new air venture—an east to west globe circling flight—"as close to the equator as I can make it."

She said the 27,000-mile flight would be started, after more than a year of planning, from Oakland, California, sometime in March. Captain Harry Manning, hero of many ocean rescues, will accompany the woman pilot on a part of the flight as navigator.

Smaller Helmet

Berlin.—The ponderous German helmet of the Great War cartoons is going to shrink. The general staff approved a new steel helmet weighing six ounces less than the old one. It resembles the former helmet in general shape but has a smaller visor and is made of rust-proof seamless steel.

Pleased With Results

Edmonton.—Mail service between Edmonton and eastern Canada points is "really good," secretary John Blue of the Edmonton Chamber of Commerce stated in announcing result of a survey taken by means of post-cards.

Britain Takes Steps To Borrow Large Amount To Build Up Defences

London.—Britain moved to make up to $2,000,000,000 of new money available for building up her defensive rearmament.

Briefly announced in the House of Commons and amplified by a white paper issued by the treasury, the plan is to borrow up to £400,000,000 over a five-year period, the debt to be redeemed inside of 30 years.

The chancellor of the exchequer, Neville Chamberlain, announcing the plan, said a bill would be introduced to give the government general power to borrow money or to use realized surplus for defence expenditures. Present government revenues would not meet the defence expenditures, he said. "He had warned last April that a defence loan would be necessary. The treasury's white paper explained power would be included in the bill to transfer any annual budget surplus within the five-year borrowing period to costs of defence instead of applying it to redemption of the national debt.

Money borrowed under the plan can be used only as voted by parliament in the estimates, the white paper made clear, thus giving parliament complete control of the fund.

Provision is made for repayment of sums to the exchequer from money provided by parliament for the defence services, with interest at three per cent, yearly.

For the first five years interest only will be paid on the loan and thereafter interest and capital will be repaid in 30 equal annual instalments.

The white paper pointed out that the £400,000,000 does not represent actual cost of the new defence program but was the aggregate which could be borrowed.

Borrowed money will not be used for current budget expenditures on the maintenance of the defence forces. It was not anticipated, the paper said, that a fixed sum would be allocated annually from the loan and from current revenue for defence purposes.

It is understood instead the chancellor of the exchequer will decide annually to appropriate the amount needed from such source for defensive purposes.

In borrowing, the government may keep a balance on hand to meet possible contingencies, the paper explained. That is, if £400,000,000 were required for a given period, £150,000,000 might be borrowed as to meet possible supplementary estimates voted by parliament.

Informed quarters viewed the announcement as offering no prospect whatever of a reduction of taxation in the next budget.

Lightning Kills Cattle

Freak Bolt Also Destroys Barn On Ontario Farm

Enterprise, Ont. A freak bolt of lightning caused a fire that completely destroyed a large barn belonging to Louis Whalen, near this community 25 miles northwest of Kingston. A horse and three cattle were killed by the bolt.

After the lightning struck the barn it ran 50 feet along the ground, overturning large boulders and splintering a big elm tree. It then ran along a fence for a quarter of a mile, demolishing fence posts until it entered the ground, tearing out huge stones in the process.

Ask Preferential Duties

British Poultrymen Claim Eggs Industry Is Being Affected

London.—British poultrymen want preferential duties on eggs imported from the dominions. The poultry men contend the condition of their industry was most serious, especially as affecting the small producer, due mainly to increased imports and the higher cost of feed.

The question was referred to the poultry sub-committee of the parliamentary committee for consideration and a report.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

THESE may be the "dog days" of the winter season. Contrasting the dog days of the summer, a period of the year including about six weeks of the hottest and most sultry days of July and August, at which period the dog star rises with the sun, they are not so hot. Inactivity in local business, partly caused by blocked roads, allows time to meander around and see what others are doing.

IT IS an opportune time for those who do not loaf to brighten up store interiors and make plans for carrying on when the usual activity is resumed. Laziness begets laziness, and it will quickly get you down. On the other hand, activity begets activity, as often noticed by the fact that the busy store attracts business because it is busy. It aims to have something novel to interest people, and originality never fails to excite interest.

HERE is a community of almost four thousand souls, tucked away on the eastern slope of the mountains and just a few miles from the British Columbia-Alberta boundary. Its natural setting is one of beauty, though it cannot be claimed that man has done anything to enhance it. Through lack of a town planning system, the place just "grew up," which explains many things better left unsaid.

THERE ARE some enlightened individuals who would try and have town planning and building regulations adhered to, but the indifference of the many nullifies their efforts, with the result that things go on in much the same old style and the town changes but very little from its original appearance. There is such a thing as self-satisfaction becoming a rut so deep that it ultimately becomes a grave. It is something that energetic people constantly combat. To progress we must have aspirations to become something better than what we are.

WE'VE often noticed that people who are constantly belittling about the previous condition of the poor, and exhorting others to do something about it, enjoy nice comfortable livings, modern homes, wear good clothes, own cars and radios and many other things that make life pleasant. We read newspaper articles, hear radio addresses and politicians on this everlasting subject, (for the poor we always have and always will have, including the incompetents who think the world owes them a living) but not one of them heeds the injunction of the great master who being asked by the rich man what he should do to help humanity, was told to give all he had to the poor and "Follow Me!"

IF THESE self professing disciples of Christ in high places are so concerned in abolishing poverty, then why not back it up by deeds instead of merely using words that are as tinkling brass and empty vessels. Most of their talk is just blatant hypocrisy.

ONE must retain a sense of humor to avoid being handicapped with an everlasting chip on the shoulder. That is why "a little humor now and then is relished by the wisest men." Gag men who can produce the funny stuff for radio artists command large fees for their ability to think up humorous quips, which are really based on life's experiences and human nature in general. The individual who takes himself very seriously has a funny side to his nature, possibly not in his own estimation, but to others. Burns so aptly expressed it in the line—"To see ourselves as others see us." Its good medicine to take a look at ourselves occasionally and try and imagine what we appear like to others. Possibly it would reveal to most of us that we're all mighty small potatoes in a big patch, and in a very short time after we pass on the rest of the world will forget us forever.

OF COURSE, if you believe some theorists, after you die — your soul may wander around as punishment, in the sorrowful looking cow or a dog or a horse, where you will be compelled to view from another angle the comings and goings of others who think they are just as important as you may have considered yourself when your mortal soul was encased in a frame of flesh and blood. This would be one of life's grimmest jokes, were it really true. You or your soul would need a very keen sense of humor to enjoy it.

EFFORTS of the Canadians Veterans Bonus League to secure a bonus for each member of the C. E. F. will be frowned upon, not because the public wish to withhold what is coming to ex-service men; but because under the pension and disablement schemes, Canada's veterans are being provided for. Making these attempted raids on the public treasury is piling it on the taxpayers too much, and so far nothing has been heard of the really representative organization of the veterans, the Canadian Legion, upholding this movement for a bonus.

How Coleman Was Named

Interesting Information Gleaned From Notes of Late Mrs. M. E. Graham, One of Coleman's Early Beloved Residents.

Following the request in last week's Journal for information on the origin of the name of the town, the following letter has been submitted by Postmaster F. H. Graham, which was among some notes compiled by his mother, who evidently had been securing material for a historical record of the town. As the letter also contains some interesting material on the early history of the International Coal & Coke Co., Ltd. written by the late A. C. Flummerfelt, first president of the company, it is published in full:

Victoria, B. C.
Feb. 12, 1923.

"On my arrival in Victoria from Montreal I find your communication of January 18 awaiting me. I have not all the data here but roughly the information you desire is as follows:—

The company was incorporated in 1903 under the laws of the State of Washington. During 1904 the plant was built and coal mining began early in November of that year. The town was laid out which you rightly say was named after my second daughter. The station was an old discarded freight car. Our aim was to keep the property operating and particularly to produce coke for the Granby Smelter which was the primary reason for our embarking on the coal mining enterprise. Lots were sold by the company and the deeds carried a restriction controlling the sale of liquor for a period of fifteen years and you may remember that one or two men attempted to avoid this condition and action was brought and carried through the Privy Council to prevent indiscriminate sale at a very great cost to the company, but my object was to prevent Coleman from becoming a resort for all sorts of questionable people; in other words to make it a model mining camp or town so that women and children might go there with safety and enjoy all the comforts of a well organized community.

The company was also very generous towards the different churches, assisted materially in the building of the same and also used every possible influence to have good educational facilities afforded. I am proud to know that in such a place as that there are some thirteen teachers in the schools.

In the course of time owing to the war conditions and the imposition of certain taxes in the United States in 1919 the company was re-incorporated at Ottawa and became a Dominion organization.

The area owned by the Company is somewhat like 5,300 acres and experts inform us that coal in commercial quantities can probably be mined through our present operations for at least one hundred years.

Our aim has been to build up a community upon a solid foundation providing every possible facility for the preservation of life and limb in the operations, giving the men a just and proper compensation for their work and generally contribute to the up-building of the district and the general benefit of all who may be concerned."

Faithfully yours,
(Signed) A. C. Flummerfelt.

The flu epidemic which is at present raging in Coleman is playing havoc with school attendance and also with the teaching staff. Absent from their classrooms during the past few days were Mrs. Clifford and the Misses May Powell, Edith Haysom and Catherine Milley.

"Just Average Folks"

There are no mysterious "fifty big shots" crushing the debtors of Alberta.

The bond and mortgage holders of this Province are just average folks—just such neighbourly people as you deal with every day—people who have hoed their row successfully, put by a little savings from year to year and tried to invest these savings securely, thus creating nest eggs for their old age.

The $382,000,000 invested by life insurance companies in city and farm mortgages in Canada are the savings of 3,500,000 policyholders. In the same way, other hundreds of millions held in mortgages by loaning companies are the savings of scores of thousands of shareholders and debenture holders—$70,000,000 of mortgage holdings of one such company alone representing the savings of between fifty and sixty thousand persons of average means.

In Canada, it is the people of such average means who provide the funds which are invested in bonds and mortgages in Alberta and other provinces.

This statement is one of a series written by The Mortgage Lenders Association of the Province of Alberta. The Association is composed of 34 member companies. It represents hundreds of thousands of small investments by typical Canadians. Its loans to citizens of Alberta amount to some forty-five million dollars.

(The seventh statement in this series will be published in two weeks)

Time Fully Occupied

Chairman of B.B.C. Advisory Council is Busy Man

Lord Macmillan, who succeeds the Archbishop of York as chairman of the B.B.C. Advisory Council, is one of the busiest of men. The number and variety of the commissions and inquiries over which he has presided in the past 12 years, in addition to his legal work, is astonishing. These are the subjects with which he deals: Lunacy, miners' wages, the British Pharmacopoeia, street offences, finance and industry, income tax, the wool industry, shipbuilding, Canadian banking, and disputes between Holland and Norway. Somehow, he finds time, too, to work for the Pilgrim Trust, the Carnegie Trust, a hospital, the National Library of Scotland, a Scottish legal society, and King George's Jubilee Trust, recounts the news of the World. Such a list makes it easier to believe a story told of his days as a judge. To a long-winded counsel he is said to have sent this note: "Patience, Patience: 1, Macmillan; Also ran, Job." Counsel took the hint.

To Plant 235,000 Acres Of Soviet Farm Land

Schedules for planting 235,000 acres of Soviet farm land this spring were published recently in Moscow. About 88 per cent of the area will be planted by the kolchozes (collective farms); 11 per cent by the sovkhoses (state farms); and less than one per cent by individual peasants.

The schedule provides measures to guarantee the high quality of farm products. Semi-official sources declared the coming year should see unprecedented development of the speed-up movement and an increase in all harvests, especially grain.

Mammoth Bones Found By Workers Near Lehart, Saskatchewan

The sketches which accompany this article show bones of a mammoth which were found near Lehart, Saskatchewan, by half-breed road workers.

They were in the possession of Dr. V. Rondeau, dentist of Rouleau, Sask., and are supposed to be about 10,000 years old.

The mammoth, progenitor of the modern elephant, inhabited the temperate parts of the northern world during the glacial period, and survived until the Neolithic period of human history, a comparatively recent time.

The animal was about the same size as the modern Asiatic elephant, was covered with a thick skin clothed with long dark hair and woolly fur, and had two large tusks.

BIRD SANCTUARIES

Jack Miner and his two sons, Manly (left), Jasper (centre), about to liberate a pair of Canada Geese to study their route of migration for scientific purposes.

Most people look upon Jack Miner's of bird sanctuaries in North Carolina, other states as well as other sanctuaries in Ontario, which had been taken from blinds and which shows the geese wearing his tag. Thus while there are chains of sanctuaries throughout America, birds can't become exterminated yet and the hunters have good shooting between these sanctuaries. In other words the sanctuaries stop any exterminating possibility.

Millions of dollars have rightly been spent in the United States and Canada for museums where only stuffed specimens can be seen. Jack Miner asks, is it not just as sane if not more so, to maintain sanctuaries where specimens can be seen alive and saved from extermination.

Outsiders Get Posts

United States Scientists Hold Jobs in British Laboratories

Throughout the Empire there was a growing tendency for the best posts in science and engineering to go to citizens of the United States declared Frank Parkinson, guest of honor at a function given by the chancellor and senate of Leeds University. Mr. Parkinson, who is head of a well-known Leeds firm, recently gave $1,000,000 to the university.

In trying to find out why this state of affairs existed, Mr. Parkinson found that he had had the opportunity of meeting some of these people. He found they had qualifications which rendered them suitable for the posts. The posts were entirely free from any pressure, and in fact, other things being equal, the British subject would have been preferred.

He wondered whether there was anything in the science training of the universities of the United States which qualified their students better for the posts. He was perfectly satisfied the material available in Britain was better than that in the United States, and he could only think there was something in the training they received that produced these results. Mr. Parkinson expressed the belief that the provincial universities of Great Britain were the best institutions for improved science training. He thought this for two main reasons. A sterling quality of character existed in the provinces to a greater degree probably than in some other parts of the country. Furthermore, he believed that the older universities were not quite so well qualified to meet the situation for one main reason that they drew their students from a different strata of society.

Canadian Dramatists

Receive Praise From Adjudicator For Dominion Drama Festival

Praise for the interest of Canadians in the drama and for the vitality of Canadian plays was voiced by George De Wartaz, London, England, regional adjudicator for the Dominion drama festival.

"I have never seen a people anywhere with a keener interest in drama," he said. "Three plays written by Canadians had already won places for the festival final. They were characterized by freshness and spontaneity. He was particularly happy, he stated, because they were thoroughly Canadian in conception and not imitations of foreign products.

The regional adjudicator began his duties at Saint John, N.B., January 25, and completed his work in the eastern part of the country in Montreal. Competitions were also held in Ontario cities. Mr. De Wartaz will travel west, completing his adjudication in Vancouver, March 27.

Michael St. Denis will be the final adjudicator when the Dominion festival is staged in Ottawa the week of April 26. Mr. St. Denis is a brilliant representative of the modern French theatre, who is now director of the London Studio Theatre (Le Theatre Ecclé).

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

FEBRUARY 21

THE POWER OF JESUS OVER DEATH

Golden text: I am the resurrection, and the life. John 11:25.
Lesson: John 11:1-12:11.
Devotional reading: Job 14:13-15; 19:23-27.

Explanations And Comments

The Death of Lazarus, John 11:1-16. "He whom thou lovest is sick" was the message which came to Jesus in Perea from Martha and Mary, the sisters of Lazarus. They believed that Jesus would start at once for Bethany without being asked, but he told his disciples that Lazarus illness was for the glory of God and of himself, and tarried where he was two days longer. Then he proposed going back to Judea, but his disciples remonstrated, reminding him of the danger of going where the Jews had so lately sought to stone him. He assured them that his life was safe as long as God had work for him to do, and added that he must go to awaken Lazarus out of sleep. His disciples took his words literally, if Lazarus was sleeping he would recover. Jesus told them plainly that Lazarus was dead, and that if he waited until his brother was dead he would be glad he himself had not been there. He invited them to go with him, and Thomas, despondent yet loyal and brave, said to the others, "Let us also go, that we may die with him."

The Meeting of Jesus and Martha, verses 17-27. Burial in Palestine has always taken place on the day of death, and when Jesus reached the neighborhood of Bethany Lazarus had been in the tomb four days. Martha met him on the way and exclaimed in her sorrow, "Lord, if thou hadst been here my brother had not died." And then she added, "Even now I know whatsoever thou shalt ask of God, God will give thee."

Her brother shall rise again," returned Jesus. "Yes, in the resurrection at the last day." Martha answered, finding little comfort in that far-distant future hope. "If an resurrection, and the life," solemnly Jesus affirmed: "that he believeth on me, though he die, yet shall he live." "Believeth thou this?" "Yea, Lord; I have believed that thou art the Christ, the Son of God, even he that cometh into the world," answered Martha; his power she would not limit.

The Raising of Lazarus, verses 34-46. "Where have ye laid him?" "Lazarus," Jesus wept. "Take ye away the stone." Jesus calmly bade, but Martha objected, reminding Jesus that Lazarus had been dead four days and by this time the body was decaying. "Said I not unto thee, that if thou believest thou shouldst see the glory of God?" questioned Jesus.

"Then with a loud voice Jesus cried, "Lazarus, come forth." And Lazarus came forth. He was bound hand and foot with grave-clothes, with a napkin close about his face. "Loose him, and let him go," Jesus bade. Here the story of the miracle ends.

An hour formerly was one-twelfth of the time between sunset and sunrise and one-twelfth of the time between sunrise and sunset; hence, it was of different lengths in different seasons.

Princess Elizabeth is not usually permitted to accept presents from strangers. But an exception was recently allowed for Eileen Martin and her young sister, Betty, of Weymouth, who sent the princess two miniature dolls.

The girls have received a letter from the queen telling of her majesty's desire as so small they were sent in a matchbox. Eileen explained she had seen pictures of the princess's dolls and they were all large so she tried to complete the household with smaller ones. They were hand-made.

At the first sign of sore throat due to cold, dissolve three "Aspirin" tablets in $\frac{1}{2}$ glass of water. Gargle with this twice. It will act almost instantly to relieve the rawness and soreness of your throat. At the same time, take two "Aspirin" tablets with a full glass of water. This acts to combat fever, cold waves and pains and the cold itself. Repeat the treatment in 2 hours if necessary. This modern way to treat a cold is approved by thousands of doctors.

"Aspirin" tablets are made in Canada by the Bayer Company, Limited, of Windsor, Ontario.

He broke off abruptly. They had both become conscious of Michael's eyes following them. Michael's eyes held a gleam of jealousy as he viewed this intimate little scene between his wife and the man who once had been reported to be her lover.

They were back in the privacy of their own apartment, however, before Michael said a word. Then he burst out:

"I'm sorry we had to run into Marlowe tonight, Starr. I intended for you never to see him again."

Starr's face was strained. She had known subconsciously that it would be like this. All through their honeymoon in the country they had not mentioned Lance's name at all, as though by common consent. Michael had asked her nothing about the man. But she could not forget—Once, in that despairing mood, she had tacitly admitted to Michael that she had taken Lance Marlowe as her lover. That she had said it when she did for Michael's sake meant nothing now. If only she had not!

And now, because of Lance, after their long days of peace, they were in the midst of conflict again, tortured with memories which refused to be lived down.

It all was so plain to Starr. . . . Gossip linking her name with Lance's; her own voice crying out to Michael on that crazy night, telling him that she had been Lance's mistress, trying to make him hate her.

It was more than Starr could bear. She turned to her husband swiftly, pleadingly. Her voice raced.

"Michael, I've wanted to explain to you so many times, only somehow I couldn't. There has never been anything between Lance and me, never! I lied to you. All of that awful time I was living a lie! Michael, you do believe me, don't you? You must believe me!"

Michael, looking down on her said: "Of course I do," pressing her small, cold hands very tightly in his big ones. "You're my wife, and I love you." But there was a strange edge to his voice which chilled her, in spite of his words.

CHAPTER XVII.

Busy days again. Except for that slight undercurrent of an imperfect understanding which Starr felt as if she were a diving rod for Michael's moods, happy days. So much to be done. And, as always at such times, little chance to think.

Michael threw himself into business with a will, making up for lost time. He left it to Starr to hunt out their new home. She had about come to the determination that they should not live in an apartment house at all, but should take one of those attractive houses out in Forest Hills. So much more like a home, with an upstairs and down, your own lawn, and a lovely vista view which would be a purple cloud in the summer time.

Michael made a little objection. It was so far away from business, he said. But with a wily concern for his health, Starr insisted that the drive into town each morning would be just the thing he needed. Perhaps he would not get any fresh air otherwise.

So it went, with most of their discussions at breakfast, at the lunch-dinner downtown which Starr sometimes took with her husband, and during the placid evenings they spent together in the Egyptian living room with the Del-el-Bahari fresco. Life was perfect again—almost.

Then catastrophe. It was on a December morning not far from Christmas time when Starr received the first of the threatening letters.

She was seated across the breakfast table from Michael in the little alcove overlooking the shining St. Lawrence River when Sapphira came in with the morning mail. She handed it all to Michael, who ran his eye through the letters and handed over an envelope addressed to Starr. It was addressed in a rough, unformed hand. Not to Mrs. Michael Fairbourne, but simply to Starr Ellison.

Michael laughed queerly as he glanced up at her, handing her the letter.

"I thought everybody knew that we were married. Better advise your friends, Starr."

That was ridiculous. Actually she had not a friend in the world, now that she had cut herself loose from those who had known her in the New England town, who probably had not the faintest idea she was still in the land of the living. No friends—only acquaintances. Like Lance, and Stephanie, and Doug Ranger, and perhaps Marjorie Brownling, and the rest of the fast-stepping crowd. Certainly they could not be called friends.

With a curious pang of fear that caught her breath in her throat, she snatched the envelope. A half-strangled cry was forced back from her lips as the words stared at her. Then nameless dread plunged through her like a cold dagger.

On a single sheet of paper was written in that same unformed hand: "You cannot escape your fate. You and the man you love."

The letter was no signature, only a queer scrawl near the bottom of the page that may or may not have been heretofore written. Starr did not know. She was in a daze. Then she became aware that Michael was saying sharply:

"What is it? What's the matter, Starr? Don't look like that!"

Somehow she pulled herself together, tried to smile with unconcern.

"It's nothing," she said, with too elaborate carelessness. "Nothing at all. But her lips shook, and her face was as white as the paper she held in her hand.

Michael's eyes seemed to be peering down into her very soul. He said sternly:

"Nonsense! There is something the matter. You look positively sick, Starr."

The note was crumpled in her nervous fingers. She stared at him in a stricken silence. Michael held out his hand. Masterful again.

"Starr, let me see that letter."

Her numb lips moved, and in her dark eyes was tragedy. She shook her head.

"I can't, Michael. It isn't my thing. I told you so."

The familiar line on Michael's jaw stood out. He spoke steadily.

"There should be, no secrets between husband and wife. Let me see that letter!"

It had become a matter of vital importance now. Michael was demanding to see the letter. Starr knew she must refuse him. She would refuse him, no matter what happened. And he was probably thinking . . .

Suspicion clouded Michael's face. Suspicion edged his voice.

"Starr, let me see that letter. But he was thinking. But he was thinking.

ing—remembering. . . . That whispered conversation with Lance, and now came a mysterious letter which she would not explain. Did he think that she and Lance was communicating clandestinely, and only the chance of this letter having arrived at an inopportune time had betrayed the secret?

Dully Starr repeated, as she shook her head: "I can't!"

Michael did not ask her again. He simply got up from the table, leaving his breakfast half finished. He stalked out into the entry way and yanked his hat and coat from the hook. Starr heard the outer door bang behind him. It was the first time since their marriage that he had gone out of the apartment without kissing her goodbye.

The distraught bride paced her long living room in a mental torment. She paid no attention to Sapphira's perplexed comments, as if she had not heard her.

What was the meaning of this ominous note? Where had it come from? Who knew? It was like a direct answer to the fear which since he had been growing upon her slowly since the day her honeymoon ended.

In spite of her busy days, she had had long hours in which to brood, hours when she was alone. Michael, fired with the enthusiasm of providing for their future, had been working under double pressure. She had been thinking about the future, too, defying her inexorable fate, planning, working for a home in which she and Michael should spend long years together. She might have known the futility of that!

Weeks had sped by rapidly. With a dazed feeling Starr now suddenly realized that it was many weeks that had flown into months—since the doctor had told her: "You won't live another six months."

Suppose his prophecy came true? Suppose the curse did fall upon her, as all along she had felt in the depths of her soul that it would? She had defied her destiny. Love—married. Was it to end now—her forbidden happiness?

Royal Robes

Royal School Of Needlework Engaged On Fine Embroidery

Thirty-five needlewomen have been chosen by Lady Smith-Dorrien, principal of the Royal School of Needlework, for the Coronation work which will be carried out at the school during the next three months. They will be engaged mainly on fine embroidery work on the canopy to be held over the King and Queen during the anointing, on the King's robe, and probably on the Queen's dress and train.

The King's robe will be that which was made at the school in 1902 for King Edward VII, and it is to be sent to the school shortly to be thoroughly examined, and repaired if necessary. It is of cloth of gold, embroidered all over with colored emblems—red Tudor roses, green shamrocks, purple thistles and silver eagles.

The canopy will be made entirely at the school, of cloth of gold, with 18 raised silver eagles round the border. It will be lined with rich white satin, and supported at each corner by four slender silver poles. The Queen's dress will be made of white satin and will be embroidered all over in white and gold. Designs for the embroidery of the dress include Dominion and Colonial emblems.—London Times.

New Regulations Effective

Restrictions Placed On Germany's Restaurants Under New Plan

Fewer dishes on the bill of fare, fewer table cloths in restaurants, and therefore less laundry, are some of the new measures to help Germany become self-sufficient in her food and raw material supply under the new four-year plan.

This was announced at the hotel and restaurant proprietors' meeting at Hanover recently. The new regulations became effective with the advent of the new year.

No bill of fare, even in the most expensive restaurants, is permitted to offer more than 12 different soups, 10 "dishes of the day," 10 fried or grilled dishes, six egg dishes, six different kinds of cold and four kinds of warm hors d'oeuvre, or 15 cold dishes such as cold cut, various special salads and cold fish.

Ordinary salads, vegetables, game and poultry may only be offered according to season. No stipulations have been made regarding cheese and dessert. Hot fish is the only major dish not subject to any restrictions, as the consumption of fish is to be encouraged.

Menus of the larger restaurants may offer no more than six major dishes, of which two must be fish, while menus of medium-sized restaurants may offer no more than three dishes, of which one must be fish.

Restaurant tables having marble or wooden tops, which can be cleaned, are not to be covered by table cloths. Saving can be made in laundry, it is said, without impairing either cleanliness or hygiene.

Cutlery, crockery and kitchen utensils in new restaurants are to consist of glass, porcelain or metals which are easily obtainable, in order to save silver, nickel and copper.

Industry For Alberta

News that Utah interests are planning a woolen mill for Magrath is further evidence that Southern Alberta is developing industrially in the direction of those industries for which it is best suited, states the Lethbridge Herald. A woolen mill in the centre of a district which produces 2,500,000 pounds of wool annually, and in an area where woolen clothing is a vital necessity of the residents, sounds logical.

A column of air one mile square extending from 50 feet to 14,000 feet above the earth contains, on an average for all seasons, about 25,000,000 insects.

Must Be Competition

Government Order Regulates The Sale Of Militia Horses

The government will tolerate no combinations in restraint of trade, nor secret covenants made to restrict free competition—even in the sale of militia horses. From time to time the noble steeds are found unfit for further service, or, for other reasons, have to be sold. In any case, the national defence department will see that this is fair.

General Order No. 2, tabled in the House of Commons by Ian Mackenzie, minister of national defence, makes this clear. It set forth that when one of these chargers has to be sold the sale has to be done by auction, and the C.O. of the regiment promoting the sale "will attend an officer to attend."

The reason is clear. The G.O. 2 continues that it will be the duty of this officer "to see that no combination is made to keep down the price. If such combination is apparent he will, after consultation with the auctioneer, postpone the sale."

The auctioneer gets a $5 fee if the sale price is $100, and five per cent if over. However, there might not be much in it for the auctioneer because, says the order, he "will pay for all the advertising."

Little Helps For This Week

Remember O Lord Thy tender mercies and Thy loving-kindnesses, for they have ever been of old. Psalm 25:8.

My Father I see and trust The faithfulness displayed of old. I trust the love that never can grow cold. I trust in Thee.

Be not so much discouraged in the sight of what is yet to be done, as comforted in His good-will towards thee. It is true He has chastened thee with rods of sore afflictions, but old He ever take away his loving-kindness from thee, or did His faithfulness ever fail thee in the darkest night that over befell thee? We call Him the God of our fathers, and we feel there is some stability at centre when we can tell our cares to One listening at our right hand and by whom their cares have been remembered and removed.

A Century-Old Pipe

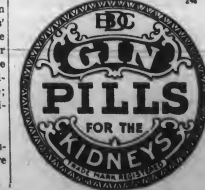

A pipe 125-years old and carved out of three sections of elk's horn was found hidden in the crotch of the branches of an old tree cut down on a Yarmouth township farm, near Port Stanley, Ontario. The letters "J. Hall, 1811," are carved on the pipe.

The bankers of New York City were the first employees to go on strike in America. The strike occurred in 1741. In those early days strikers were treated as conspirators but convictions seldom were obtained.
